PREAMBLE

Research is central to the mission of the University, to the advancement of knowledge, and to the social well-being, health and the economic development of society. The University, funding agencies and other public and private sponsors of research and related activities recognize that research can best flourish in a climate of academic freedom, a climate premised on trust in, and the integrity of, members of the University research communities and their compliance with the policies, practices and ethical norms governing research. Thus, the University is committed to the promotion of research integrity and the ongoing education of the members of its community in matters of research integrity.

However, it must also be recognized that in research, as in any human endeavour, there are some who are alleged to have failed to adhere to accepted norms. Allegations of research misconduct may arise from sources within or outside the University – and allegations may or may not be well-founded. Whatever their source, motivation or accuracy, such allegations have the potential to cause great harm to the persons accused and their associates, to the accuser, to the University, and to research and scholarship in general. Thus, it is in the interests of the public, funding agencies and other sponsors of research, and the University, that the University has in place an appropriate procedure for assessing allegations of research misconduct and, where warranted, investigating such allegations and reporting the results of investigations to relevant University authorities and agencies. Moreover, funding agencies hold institutions responsible for investigating allegations of misconduct involving members of their research communities and generally require that they have in place appropriate policies and procedures.

These Regulations, which have been developed to comply with the requirements of the Tri-Council Agencies (CIHR, NSERC or SSHRC), the Fonds de recherche du Quebec (FRQ), and other granting agencies, provide a common procedure for the University. They apply to all allegations of research misconduct, regardless of the discipline involved. These Regulations establish a procedural framework that will:

- o ensure the promptness, impartiality, fairness and transparency of the University's response to allegations of research misconduct and
- o ensure the protection of the interests of:
 - those alleged to have engaged in research misconduct;
 - those making Good Faith Allegations of research misconduct;
 - those who, while not directly implicated in, are nevertheless directly affected by, allegations of misconduct;
 - Human Participants;
 - the University and its affiliated institutions;
 - the funding agencies and other sponsors of research; and
 - the public.

1. DEFINITIONS

An Advisor shall be accorded full respect by the University's administrative officers.

1.2 "Agency" means the funding agency, foundation, organization, sponsor, the Secretariat on Responsible Conduct of Research or other entity, public or private, international, national, provincial or foreign, which supports the research in whole or in part, or which has oversight of any research activities, in respect of which the Research Misconduct is alleged to have occurred.

1.3 "Chair" means the chair(s) or director(s) of the department(s), institute(s), school(s) or centre(s) of the Respondent's appointment, registration or affiliation.
